FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

A Fresh Perspective on Parenting!

Eleven unique voices declare:
we cannot be evolved or enlightened parents
until we become evolved and enlightened people

Guardians of the Vision: Parenting for the Birthright of Potential is a journey of self-discovery documenting the experiences and accompanying life-changing insights of ten women and one man who seek to redefine what they believe parenting to be. Contributing author and project co-creator Anita Allen says, "We believe there is an urgent and compelling need to redefine parenting."

At its core, the book invites readers to stop and take the time to reflect on what parenting truly is rather than merely accepting what it is commonly presumed to be. This requires that readers be willing to come face to face with themselves, for we cannot be evolved or enlightened parents unless and until we are willing to be evolved and enlightened people.

Project co-creator Louise LeBrun states, "This book recognizes that until we become the change we seek in our children, our lives will remain the same. It is a vicious circle, for the unexpressed potential of a child becomes the thwarted potential of the adult, reflected in so many of the challenges we face today."

Thought-provoking, highly readable and utterly honest, Guardians of the Vision: Parenting for the Birthright of Potential invites readers, in the words of Louise LeBrun, "to recognize that our greatest contribution to our children (and ourselves) is to trust our innate genius and recognize, honor and respect the potential in us all...the entelechy of being human...that lies waiting to be expressed."

Praise for Guardians of the Vision

"I could not put this book down! Each word of each chapter speaks to the truth and willingness of each contributing author to manifest a new world... one of massive respect, integrity and generosity of spirit for ourSelves and for our children and their children."
